Change is Coming Within the Dental Sector.

With the acceptance and understanding of dental caries as a disease continuum, and wider awareness of the preventable nature of cavities, strides are being taken by governments, dental professionals and the public to ensure a future where dental cavities are not an inevitability of life. But what does this shift mean for dental industries? How can we harness this shifting tide and ensure sustainability and thriving across a changing dental landscape and market, whilst ensuring that the Oral and Dental Industries can also benefit the patients and the public?

Join us as we take a deep look into the question:

“How can the Oral Health and Dental Industries benefit from enabling positive behaviour in caries prevention and control amongst patients and the public?”
The Dental Policy Lab is helping to accelerate reform in the dental care sector in many countries aimed at improving population oral health. This unique partnership is not only inspiring, but it will have a lasting impact on dental care systems around the globe.

— Dr Marko Vujicic, Chief Economist & Vice President, Health Policy Institute, American Dental Association

This innovative ‘Policy Lab’ meeting offers the opportunity for representatives from world leading dental industries to come together and work to shape the next steps in the evolution of the dental sector.

Taking place over 24-hours spread over two days, participants will have the opportunity to hear from leading figures in dental psychology, behaviour change and policy, before drawing together to formulate ideas which can be used as catalysts for change within their sectors.
